About the ELP

The IAU Executive Leadership Programme (ELP) is unique. It is radically global in its ambition to support university leaders across all higher education systems and types focusing on common issues and challenges. It covers central aspects of higher education management for a sustainable running of the institution, and it empowers university leaders to navigate the contextual and political dimensions of university leadership. In short, the ELP provides a framework with which to confront the big managerial, ethical, economic and societal questions universities are facing or will face.

ELP Format

The programme starts and ends with in-person meetings and continues online throughout the year. The programme is designed for current or emerging heads of institutions, and participants will be awarded a learning badge after the successful completion of the whole programme. It is designed in modular form, and each of the ten modules consists of a thematic workshop and two action leadership sessions – separated into current and emerging leaders for real peer-to-peer engagement.

In between the in-person ELP modules on site in conjunction with the IAU conferences, participants will follow this capacity building programme from anywhere in the world through online sessions.
